

Discovering Missions – a new Introduction to Missions book

A new introductory missions book, Discovering Missions, is hot off the press at Beacon Hill Press of Kansas City.

Co-authors Chuck Gailey and Howard Culbertson are missiology professors who are also veteran missionaries.

Chapters on:

- Biblical foundations for Christian mission
- History of global mission outreach
- Importance of “heart language”
- The missionary call / the ideal missionary
- Culture
- Effective short-term mission
- Globalization of the church and of the missionary force
- Mobilizing a local church
- A peek into the future

A free CD of instructional materials is available from co-author Howard Culbertson (hculbert@snu.edu)

"New vistas of mission thinking. . ."

– David Hesselgrave, Trinity Evangelical Divinity School

"Should become a standard text for academic mission studies programs and missionary training centers."

– Kenneth Gill, Billy Graham Center, Wheaton College

"A helpful guide for missionaries-to-be, missionaries on the field, sending churches and Christians of all walks of life."

– Hitoshi Fukue, seminary president in the Philippines

Discovering Missions will help you:

1. Teach future missionaries, pastors and church leaders
2. Offer continuing education for current missionaries
3. Awaken a local church to its global task
4. Enrich sermons and devotional talks
5. Develop mentors to guide people who think God might be calling them to missions
6. Do effective short-term mission trips

Endorsed by mission leaders
Already in use as a textbook

Available from the publisher, Beacon Hill Press of Kansas City at www.nph.com

ISBN-13: 9780834122574

Also at online discount booksellers such as:

www.amazon.com

www.christianbook.com

www.barnesandnoble.com

“Informative . . . readable . . . engaging . . . inspirational . . . comprehensive”

Full color publisher’s flyer: <http://home.snu.edu/~hculbert/discover.pdf>

Professors teaching missions at a college or university may order a desk/review copy for half price by writing on institutional letterhead to: Teresa Eller, 2923 Troost Ave., Kansas City, MO 64109, or FAX: 816-531-0923. Upon adoption as a text, the charge will be canceled.