“Seasons of a Navajo” SNU media center call number: E99 .N3 S42

The Navajo heritage of sacred songs, ceremonies and oral tradition comes alive with Chauncey and Dorothy Neboyia, grandparents to an extended family of two generations. They live by farming, weaving and tending sheep in a traditional hogan (dwelling) without water or electricity, while their children live in tract homes and their grandchildren attend modern public schools. This documentary captures the traditional lifestyles of the Navajo family and features striking photography of the spectacular Monument Valley.
