Descendants of the ancient Mayans, the Tzeltals (pronounced sell-tall) people of Southern Mexico lived in poverty, violence and superstition for generations. Two women brought the hope of God's Word to the Tzeltal.

Marianna Slocum, revered by the Tzeltals as their "Spiritual Great Grandmother," felt called to that people along with her finance. Unfortunately, he died shortly before their wedding. Marianna felt called to go ahead with their plans. Two years after arriving in Mexico she was joined by Florence Gerdel, an RN who brought the healing touch of medicine. Marianna reduced the Tzeltal languages to writing, translated the Word of God into two of them and taught them to read. After the Tzeltals received God’s Word in two of their dialects, they sent Marianna and Florence as missionaries to the Paez people in Colombia. Twenty years later, the two women returned for a reunion with the Tzeltals to share the newly-completed Paez New Testament.
