On the Go

I am a worldwide traveler;
I've traveled very far—
From the high mountains of Bolivia
To all the shining shores.
I've sat on ledges in mud huts,
In the desert's scorching heat,
And have visited icy Alaska,
Where the daylight and nighttime meet.
I've ridden in boats and traveled by mule,
Watched the desperate, the sick, and the poor.
I've heard the hungry cry for bread and
Seen the missionary share his meager store.
No matter what I've seen,
No matter where I've been—
I try to lift the load
And bring great joy to men.
Yes, much joy has come to many hearts,
Who, once worshiping in the sand,
Now because of me, there's a church, home,
clinic,
Or school, in many, many a land.
Yes, I'm a worldwide traveler
And have traveled around the clock.
I plan to keep on going;
I'm your Alabaster box.
